Why do we treat your personal data?

Our purpose with this research project is to gather more knowledge about the worldviews and values of young people, and especially those who maybe facing different forms of social exclusion. The research is a continuation of previous research on the worldviews of young adults across the world. The research data is gathered with the following instruments: a) Survey, b) Faith-Q-sorting, c) Debriefing interviews.

We conduct this current research project in order to ensure that our research includes young people in different life-situations across a broader diversity of countries and cultural contexts.

Several hundreds of young people worldwide will take part in this study. Individual results will not be shared with anyone outside the research group. The results will be published in academic articles and books. All participants will remain totally anonymous.

According to GDPR there must always be a legal basis for processing personal data. The legal basis for processing your personal data is:

Public interest or official authority: Åbo Akademi University has statutory tasks of public interest and the right to exercise official authority according to the Universities Act. Scientific and historical research is an example of a statutory task of public interest. Personal data is gathered and processed for the purposes of scientific research. The topic of religion and social exclusion has clear relevance particularly for the study of religions and social exclusion.

Which personal data is processed and by whom?

Personal data processed includes name (if you choose to participate with your own name), e-mail or phone number, age, voice (if you choose to participate in recorded interview).

The data will be processed by the local research group at Åbo Akademi University (see <https://sites.abo.fi/relex/relex-core-team/>).

The following special category data, as defined in the Articles 9 and 10 of the GDPR and the GDPA, 2012 (Act 843) Article 37 subsection 1 (b), will be processed: racial or ethnic origin, political opinions, religious or philosophical beliefs, data concerning a person's sex life or sexual orientation, criminal convictions and offences. These special categories of personal data are processed on the legal basis of 6 § in the Data Protection Act and Article 37 subsection 2 (b) of the GDPA, 2012 (Act 843).

We do not explicitly ask questions about racial or ethnic origin, sex life or sexual orientation, or criminal convictions and offences. However, questions about religious or philosophical beliefs, and political opinions are included. Biometric data in the form of voice is gathered if you participate in the recorded interview. All interview recordings are properly destroyed when anonymized transcripts are available.

From where do we collect your personal data and how is the data processed?

From yourself in form of the personal data that you share in the survey, and during the Faith-Q-sort and interview, as well as on the informed consent form.

In connection with the gathering of survey answers, Faith-Q-sorts, and interviews, the researcher creates a register that includes the above-listed personal data of all participants. The register is stored separately from Survey answers, Pictures of the Faith-Q-sort board, the recorded and transcribed interview. Only the local research team at Åbo Akademi University has access to this register and is bound by confidentiality. If you choose to participate under a pseudonym, your other personal data will be included in the register under this pseudonym. All survey answers and Faith-Q-sorts are gathered under a code number and are stored separately from the informed consent with your name/pseudonym and contact details (e-mail or phone number). You have the right to deny that your personal data is included in the register.

The survey answers, pictures of Faith-Q-sorts, interview recording and transcription are stored on an encrypted, password protected server provided by the Åbo Akademi University, during the research process. Informed consent forms are collected in paper format, after which they are photographed and digitally transferred to the secure server, after transfer paper versions of the informed consent forms are destroyed.

The anonymized survey answers, Faith-Q-sorts, and transcriptions are archived at the Finnish Social Science Data Archive (FSD). The archive has no final end date for storage of the data. In case the archive should cease, the archive commits to ensure that the data is transferred to another equivalent archive with the same obligations that can continue to store the data.

If you have notified the researcher that you deny the archiving of your survey, Faith-Q-sorting, or anonymized interview transcription, this data will be destroyed before transferal of the research data to the archive.

If you have notified the researcher that you wish to withdraw from the study after the survey, Faith-Q-sort, or interview, the informed consent form and all your personal data will be erased.
